

Technical Theatre-Advanced-Honors

Fall 2012

Crew Chief Acceptance Form

Your job as a crew chief is follow all directions given by the tech director (Ms. Booth) and to aid your crew in learning how to be a good crew member. This means that you are a role model. I expect you to be on task, not distracted, and a respectful but firm leader during activities you are running with your crew. I am NOT asking you to discipline your crew—if you have a problem with a crew member(s), please find me during class or address it during our crew chief meeting at the beginning of class. Your participation grades will include your crew chief duties.

You will NOT be held accountable for your members of your crew misbehaving unless you are joining in the behavior or did not tell me about it before it becomes disruptive or dangerous.

You are also responsible for an AREA in the theatre, which has been assigned to you by Ms. Booth. You are responsible for the organization and up keep of that area, and for letting Ms. Booth know when there is a problem.

Each day at the beginning of class you are expected to go to the TECH website and copy down your WORK ORDER for the day into your sketchbook (DON'T PRINT UNLESS INSTRUCTED OTHERWISE) while Ms. Booth addresses the TECH 1 students. Then, follow the directions as posted.

If you are going to be absent from class, you are responsible for e-mailing Ms. Booth ASAP so that other arrangements can be made for your crew that day. In the event of emergencies, please try to text another crew chief to let them know.

By signing this, you acknowledge and accept your duties as a Tech 3 crew chief
